Top 50 Trenchless Design Firms

Dillon has been ranked in the 2008 Trenchless Top 50 Design Firms as one of the leading design firms in Canada and the United States. Jim Breschuk and Gary Holowach have been heavily involved in this area of our business - their submission resulted in our successful award. Trenchless technology evolved in response to environmental considerations for a “no-dig” approach to renewal and rehabilitation of underground municipal assets. Trenchless technology techniques are employed by several of Dillon’s core disciplines including municipal engineering, transportation engineering, geosciences and the water and wastewater systems design groups, leading our clients towards achieving sustainability of their underground assets.

Dillon staff is increasingly successful at receiving recognition for quality work being done for our clients, and in the running of our business.

...another kilometre travelled on our journey from good to great!

EBJ Business Achievement Award

In the last quarter of 2008, the Environmental Business Journal (EBJ) solicited the environmental industry in the United States for nominations for the EBJ Business Achievement Awards. A business connection operating in the United States submitted the information needed to put Dillon’s name forward for consideration.

After careful review by a committee of EBJ staff and editorial advisory board members, we were successful in receiving an award for performance over the past two years that consistently ranked us “among the top quarter of performers in the environmental and infrastructure consulting and engineering industry.”
