

Dillon provides landscape architecture and urban design services of the highest quality to public and private sector clients throughout Canada and abroad. These capabilities have been significantly enhanced through our recent merger with ENVision - The Hough Group. Principles of ecological and urban sustainability, as well as creative design, are hallmarks of our combined approach.

Leadership and innovation in the areas of environmental planning, landscape restoration, parks and recreation planning, and urban design are well recognized through numerous awards of excellence from local, national and international design councils and organizations.

We bring to our client projects effective solutions, from initial feasibility through concept development to construction implementation. Our team of planners, landscape architects, designers, ecologists and project managers offers the technical and design expertise needed to create exciting, meaningful environments for people, with a commitment to maintaining schedules and budgets - without compromising quality.

Core services include:

- master planning
- integrated site planning and detailed design
- visual assessments
- landscape ecology
- cultural heritage landscape assessment
- policy development for green spaces, including parks, recreation and trails
