

Dillon is a client-focused company that works closely with clients, allowing us to blend our clients' knowledge with the skills of our talented project teams.

Leaders in the Field

Over the past 40 years, Dillon's Planning and Development Strategies Practice has become one of Canada's largest professional planning practices. We have developed and implemented new approaches to strategic planning, integrated land use and infrastructure planning, ecosystem-based planning, brownfield redevelopment and sustainable community design.

We have effectively delivered assignments for communities and organizations of all sizes, including policy development, environmental assessments, community plans and urban and rural developments.

Our planners are supported by professionals in over 30 disciplines, such as environmental science, urban design, landscape architecture, engineering, hydrogeology, water resources and transportation planning. We bring a broad perspective to your projects, resolving issues with innovative approaches and solutions.

Our staff has experience in:

- sustainability planning
- environmental management and environmental assessment
- community consultation
- official plans, master plans and strategic planning
- waterfronts, ports and harbours
- parks, trails and recreation
- urban redevelopment
- sustainable community development
- urban design
- development control, policies and approvals

